"But we think it most unfair that the bonus should be raised by a plan which proposes to double the taxes of our industry, without any provision to asker evenue from the hundreds of their industries which are equally available as sources of revenue. The might price of theater tickets, due in a measure to the already heavy taxes upon them, is already driving the public from the box office. To increase these taxes at such a time would be most disastrous."

One of the Chaplin revivals is enthe bill. It is a burlesque on "Carmen" and we only wish it might have been shown the week that "Carmen" was shown. Needless to say, it is fascinating, and the "Carmen" music has been fitted to it with considerable license. Some of the music is beautifully jazzed. Charles plays Don Jose called Darn Hosiery in the picture. Edna Purviance is Carmen and Ben Turpin is something in the way of a smuggler.

The overture is "American Fantasy" and there is a pictorial setting for a smuggler.

At the Capitol "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" is playing for a second week. At the Rialto Cecii de Mille's "Fooi's Paradise," a film version of "The Laureis and the Lady," thy beonard Merrick, which ran so long at the Criterion, is the feature.
